BACHELOR OF ARTS DEGREE WITH A MAJOR IN

WOMEN'S AND GENDER STUDIES

Overview

Women's and Gender Studies promotes an intersectional approach to understanding social problems and phenomena. It pays special attention to the ways sex, gender, and sexuality are shaped by colonialism, racism, ageism, homophobia, and transphobia, as well as by constructions of difference based on class, (dis)ability, religion, ethnicity, and culture. In our classes, students of all genders and sexualities learn about feminist movements to end sexism, exploitation, and related social oppressions.

"WGS provided me with a whole new consciousness and set of thought processes. It changes the way you think about and view the world and social issues....My experience has given me a new capacity for critical thought that has helped me in both my career and research endeavours."

- Jess Leppik (BA), who is pursuing a Masters degree in Family Therapy
